"No Single Culprit" Responsible For Increases In Prices Of Food

CORONADO — "The situation will not be remedied by trying to search for a single culprit," according to a market specialist commenting on the high price of food.

John W. Allen of East Lansing, Michigan, director of Food Systems, Economics and Management at Michigan State university, said, "There is no culprit. And we divert our energies to chase a mythical beast."

Allen, who spoke at the 46th annual convention of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives in Coronado, said food industry profits are among the lowest in the economy.

He said the only way to bring about lower prices is through increased efficiency and greater production.

Along these lines, Allen mentioned less costly packaging, a reduction in the number of new products, less waste, automated warehousing and more efficient rail and truck transportation.

He cited as an example of waste in transportation, rules by the Interstate Commerce commission that require truckers to make return trips "dead heading" with a payload.

In contrast, an example of increased efficiency is electronic, automatic supermarket checkout stands being tested by scores in the Washington, D.C., area. "This system is sure to result in lower food prices," he added.

"Competition is great, and automated equipment will cut labor costs, reduce errors in bills and allow stores to keep better track of stock," he added. The consumer can expect no relief in the very near future, however, Allen stated. He quoted figures that indicated food prices will increase at an annual rate of 15 per cent during the first half of 1975.

Asparagus cutting has been completed in the Coachella valley.

February gasoline consumption in California showed a 51 million gallon increase over February, 1974, but is still below the pre-energy crisis figure of February, 1973.

NEW MEMBER DRIVE NOW UNDERWAY FOR COMMUNITY CONCERT ASSOC

PORTERVILLE — Monday, April 21, marked the start of a week-long campaign to solicit new members for the Porterville Community Concert association. Volunteer workers have completed preliminary work and are now urging members who have not already renewed by mail to do so promptly.

The fourth concert will be selected at a booking meeting at the close of the campaign, with choice of the fourth event depending on the success of the membership drive.

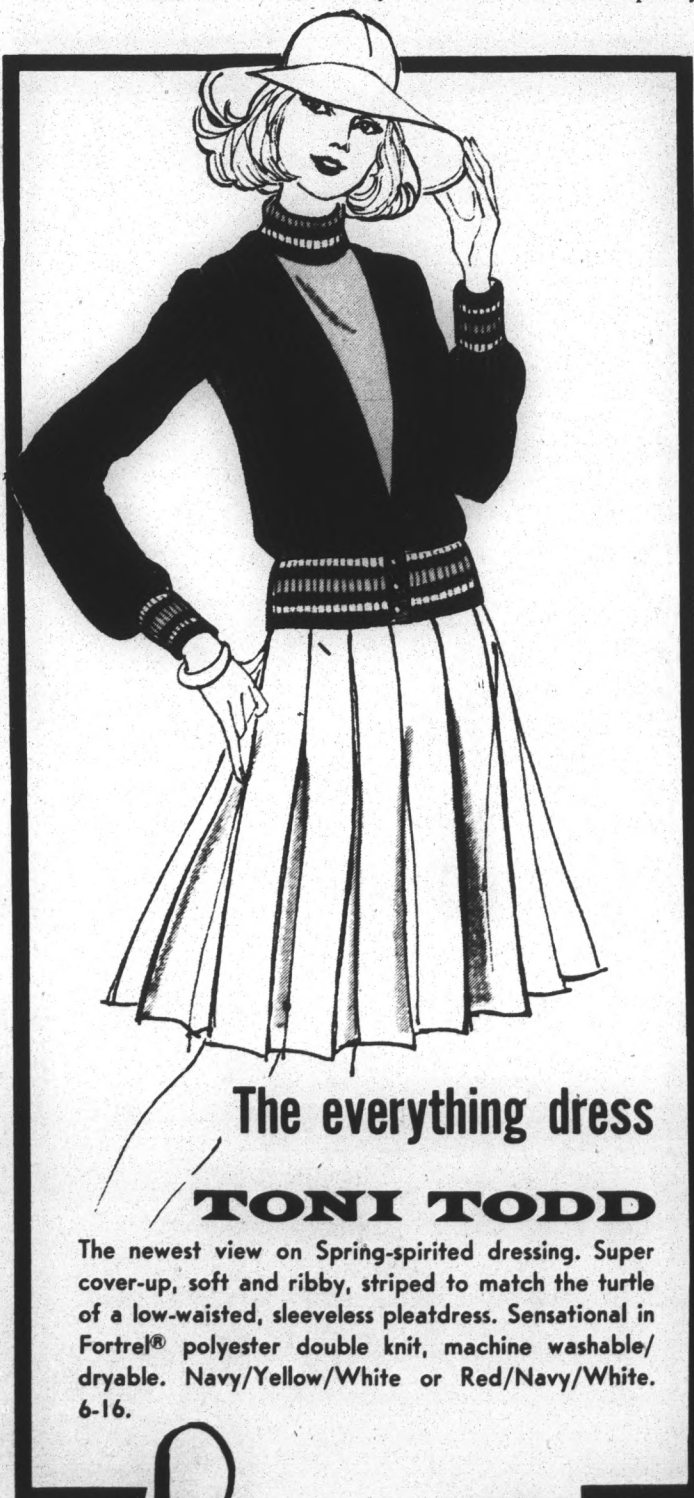

New members, in addition to four Porterville concerts, are offered as a bonus Puccini's "La Boheme," beautifully staged, costumed, and sung in English, on April 29, that concludes the present season.

Everyone is invited to become a member of the audiences for these coming events. All that is necessary is to phone Community Concerts at 781-3118 for information, or come into Wayne's Music Mart, 23 East Oak avenue, Porterville, for a membership. Admission to the Community Concert series is by association membership only.

Depend on us.

We're the Bank most active in agriculture

When you are thinking about the size and scope of the farm operation you want to own and manage, you might give a little thought to the kind of banker most likely to help you develop it.

Probably he ought to be a local banker, because the better you know each other the more convenient and productive your total banking relationship is apt to become.

Certainly he ought to be a banker who is interested in agriculture. And, certainly, he ought to represent sufficient resources of capital and credit to make it possible for you to do those things which you both know are going to be good for the bottom line of your balance sheet.

And just in case you might welcome the occasional counsel of highly competent financial specialists, he ought to be a banker who can command immediate, personal access to some of the most sophisticated money managers in this world.

That is the kind of hometown banker we want to be. And if that is the kind of hometown banker you would like to do business with, let's talk about it. At your office or mine.

Variety Of Events For Two-Day Poly Royal In San Luis Obispo

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Over 110,000 visitors are expected to attend the unique "country fair" on the California Polytechnic State University campus in San Luis Obispo, April 25 and 26.

Theme of the 43rd Annual Poly Royal celebration is "Becoming Aware of Our Environment." The 51 instructional departments and numerous student organizations will be carrying out this theme in their displays. The display will cover the 375 acre academic core of the campus' 5,169 acres.

The student-planned, student-implemented exhibits center around the educational programs of the university, and the university motto of "learn by doing."

Surrounding the open house feeling of Poly Royal are a number of fun and thrill events—rodeos on Friday and Saturday, a "Poly 500" soapbox derby, and an aquacade. Band concerts, vocal performances, baseball, and special interest exhibits such as square dancing, skiing, sports cars, art displays, and crafts work will also be featured.

Will Rogers, Jr. will appear in "An Evening with Will Rogers" on Friday night. Rogers will be presenting some of his father's material, including satirical commentary on political, social, and economic happenings of the day.

Traditional beef barbecue will feed thousands of visitors in Poly Grove on Saturday, while others will be able to find just about any style of food or special delicacy in student-manned concession booths.

The campus was established in 1901 and is one of the 19 campuses of the California State University and College system. Over 14,400 students are enrolled in Cal Poly's seven instructional schools.

Orchard and vineyard work in California generally was hampered in March by cool, wet, windy weather.

OUR TOWN

We went to England a few years ago to visit our daughter on an air base near Ipswich. At the officers club, I danced with a very young F4 fighter pilot. He weighed about ninety pounds, and loved to dance. He kept gyrating around, and this senior citizen was doing her version of the big apple, I think. We finally stopped for a breather, and he asked me where in California we lived. When I told him we lived in Porterville, he was so excited. When he had been stationed on an air base in southern California, they would come north, and turn around when they got to Porterville. Now that the weather is so lovely, and the jets are wheeling around in the sky, I look up and wonder if the pilot could be my skinny friend. He has our address and says he is coming to see us. He wants to see Porterville from the ground; he said it was beautiful from the air.

WILLIE LAND has been very busy these last few weeks. MILDRED fell and shattered her knee, and is staying with her mother VIDA STAIGE until the pins decide to set, and WILLIE is coming down from Nelson's to help as much as he can. They had been in Avila with their two grandchildren for a few days, and MILDRED climbed over a low wall to go the beach when the big crack came. Now she is flat on her back, with a phone next to her bed waiting for friends to call, and give her something to do. Calls from friends help the time to go a little faster.

We went to the Paul Bunyan for dinner the other evening, and that blue bovine is still over the fireplace.

I do wish the companies who advertise on T.V. would quit knocking their competition's product. I think it really sounds cheap. The same with people running for office. If they are so perfect, they don't have to say derogatory things about other people to get me to vote for them. Well, I got that little bit of nothing off my chest.

I have an American flag decal to put on the rear window of our car. I'm an American.

The China Cafe in Lindsay is an interesting place to eat. The owners are Japanese, and EMILY the cook is a beautiful Japanese. Her mother also helps in the kitchen, and if I could only do portraits, she would be a perfect model. The old-timers in Lindsay, say the building is exactly as it was when it was built. The cafe gives you the feeling of early forty-niners days, and the locals have their favorite dishes they enjoy.

Dry cleaners are crying for hangers. There seems to be quite a shortage of them. So don't throw away your old hangers.

Happiness is an old lady dancing with a young pilot.

PORTERVILLE STUDENTS IN YOUTH SYMPHONY

Participants in the program are advanced musicians from all of Tulare County's junior high's and high schools. The Tulare County Symphony Women's league is sponsoring the program; Raymond George, of Fresno, will be adjudicator for the symphony.

California barley forecast, as of April 1, is 53,415,068 bushels, up 17 percent from last year.

Closing date for dairymen to
